A TOUCH OF STYLE

Good design should be seen—and sometimes touched. Any (or all) of these favorites will up your home's style game.

Grin and Relax

We're not saying that Martin Eisler's Reversivel was inspired by emojis, but we're willing to sit on the idea. Available in a variety of colors and fabrics, you can sit traditionally or parallel to the seat back in a semireclined position.

Stuck Up

When it hurts to look in the mirror, that's a sign you might want to turn your life around. That is, unless you're looking too closely into this Porcupine Quill Mirror. Surrounded by quills, just hanging it will make you feel like a winner.

Throwing Shade

There are days when a little shade is worth its weight in gold. But umbrellas are so passe. Can we get an amen? That's why TUCCI's Stingray shade sculpture is an organic and artistic relief created to protect from the sun and boring design.

Screen Queen

Open concept designs, while functional, often leave us feeling exposed. But this leather and brass clip, semitransparent Diamond Screen by Marcel Wanders, which reinterprets Louis Vuitton's monogram motif, immediately adds definition and style to any space.

Take it Outside

All-weather furniture doesn't need to be dull. Case in point, this crisscrossed The Masters armchair designed by Philippe Starck and Eugeni Quitllet. Made of batch-dyed polypropylene, it is available in black, gray, mustard (shown), rust, sage green and white—and it's stackable.

Drink up

Going to a bar seems socially irresponsible. But having a bar come to you is one of the clearest ways to signify our dominance in the animal kingdom. With Lulu's Bar Cart, a little rattan and glass, and some quality brass casters, can take your martinis mobile.
